I CAN FLY

“Look at me,” said the little bird. “I can fly,” he told his mother. “I see that you can fly,” said the little bird’s mother. “Be careful and go slowly.”

The little bird flew up and down. He was so happy to be able to fly. He was tired of sitting in the nest. Now he could go hunting for worms with his mother. He could visit other little birds, too.

“Let’s go hunting for worms,” said the little bird.

His mother said, “Not now. Now you should fly into the nest and take a rest.”

The little bird flew into the nest and went to sleep. He was very tired.
